tion, and play of feature, but the rate at which a Northern winter absorbs vitality is more rapid than the rate at which the human furnace manufactures the essential fires.

Without the genial influence of a warm climate, beauty falls far below par, owing to the imperfect development of the nervous or sympathetic system. The blood stagnates, the nerves wither, the nuscles contract into rigid bundles of wires, and the whole being, body and mind becomes one incorable ache during seasons of what may be called temporary and progressive paralysis.

Admirer: I think you are a bit self-conscious. Forget yourself and your looks. There is nothing that will change the entire face. The mouth cannot be made smaller, but the ex-pression of the mouth may be changed. The pliancy of the flesh, the flexibility of the limbs, and the clasticity of the expression are all destroyed by a Siberian atmosphere. Look at the stunted figures and apathetic faces of the inhabitants of glacial countries. Look at the short, heavy bones, the rigid joints of the mountaineer of Switzerland, the squart shoulders, and grotesque movements of the people of Labrador.

A sudden drop of ten or fifteen degrees in the atmosphere in a room during the night will produce a decided rash on a sensitive face.

Winter is the season of discontent for the blonde. Her blood congeals at the first touch of frost. Beauties ranging in this category are happiest during the days of profuse perspiration, which, by the way, is the queen of cosmetics. Indeed, perspiration is one of the three factors in the making of female loveliness and if the climate does not induce this bodily function, to becessary to the beauty of the skin.

PRAISE OF YOUR PAGE.

My Dear Girls and Boys,—In the column to-day are printed several letters from members praising the work of the club and telling the other members lots of nice things that they think of the pictures and stories that they have written. Do you know that that is a very sweet thought? It is so much nicer to tell your friend that you think her pictures are well drawn now, than to wait until she has grown up into an old lady with a full, white cap and large, gold spectacles, because by then she will have forgotten that she ever drew a little boy digging in the sand for a children's page. And hesides all that, children, it is very dear and close to the heart of your editor to read that you think your page is the and other little things like that. Those letters—and all of your letters are personally mine—but those are the ones that are like bright red roses growing right up on the table in my office.

HOW OUT-OF-DOOR LIFE AFFECTS BEAUTY

Exposure to sun and wind, dust and the elements, although often acting as a tonic to the system in general and sometimes heightening general and sometimes heightening the color of the skin, is still very damaging to the refined appearance of the complexion. The open air in itself is good, but the face should always be well protected against the extreme heat, wind and dust. The girls of your acquaintance who live a great deal out of doors by no means have the most beautiful com-plexions. You can best protect your plexions. You can best protect your skin against the elements or beautify it for social life by a face lotton tify it for social life by a face lotion which you can very easily make at home by getting 4 ounces spurmax from druggist and dissolving it in ½ pint of hot water, to which you add 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. This lotion is easier to apply than powder, does not rub off, looks like part of the skin, giving a natural, velvety bloom while removing shininess and surface discolorations and curing irritation and pimples.—Advertisement.

If you've got a drop of red blood in your veins--if your heart beats one bit faster to the tune of romance---adventure---love and mystery---then you will read with avidity and delight the story "THE TREY O'HEARTS," by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE, which will shortly appear in The Times-Dispatch.

You know how "The Fortune Hunter," "The Black Bag," "The Brass Bowl," all by Mr. Vance, have stirred the world; how they have gripped, thrilled and inspired. "The Trey O'Hearts" overshadows them all. The author has set a mark in this story which it is doubtful if he will ever reach again. Action, plot and telling combine to make "The Trey O'Hearts" a record breaker among the best sellers.
